Grass - Legume Silage

Excess pastures should be stored as silage for late summer and winter use. High quality silage from a grass-legume mixture is obtained by cutting as the grass is heading out. Cutting at this stage also reduces the crowding and shading of clover.

In recent experiments, beef animals gained at the rate of 0.73 pounds daily when fed early cut grass silage alone. Animals fed only late cut grass silage gained 0.40 pounds daily, or one-third of a pound less. When late cut silage was fed with 3 pounds of grain daily, the rate of daily gain was 0.79 pounds, or only slightly more than the rate of gain on early cut silage. This points out the importance of quality grass-logume silage.

Johnson Grass

On many farms, Johnson grass in small pastures or limited areas, is a real problem, however, it may be controlled when TCA is used at the rate of 8 to 12 ounces per gallon of water. Wet the foliage thoroughly with the solution when plants are about 12 inches tall and before seed heads begin to form. A sprinkling can or small hand sprayer may be used for applying the material.

The treatment should be repeated on sprouts that may return the following spring. Sprouts from seed may come up for several seasons.

For additional information on the control of Johnson Grass, a circular may be secured at the county agent's office.

COMMENT ON SPORTS

BOXING

By Pete Fritchie

Washington,- So Rocky Marciano is thirty-three? That's what they said, when he announced he was retiring. Before that, he was supposed to have been thirty-one, according to some people, at least. After 49 victories, no defeats, Rocky is retired.

His age is a key to the champion's plans for retiring. You don't go on and on at age 33. In fact, at that age you have passed the peak, and are headed only one direction—down. Even if thirty-one, the direction is still down.

Marciano misses a test with Floyd Patterson by stepping out of the picture. In our opinion, Patterson might have been Rocky's toughest opponent. Be that as it may, Marciano's career is intensely interesting. He is the only champion who has never been defeated in a pro fight. He has knocked out every opponent except six.

But a champion, from 1952 on Marciano didn't meet too much rugged competition. He nailed ancient Jersey Joe Walcott, for the title, in a dramatic thirteen round knockout when apparently beaten. Then he fought six times in three years.

He gave Jersey Joe a return chance, and defeated him more easily the second time. He then defeated Roland LaStarza. He was a better fighter and Walcott was just a little bit older. He gave Ezzard Charles, an ex champ, two shots at the title. He gave Don Cockell a go at it in May, 1955, and then in September he gave Archie Moore his chance.

Of all his championship bouts, that first Walcott fight was his closest squeak. He was close to losing when he caught old Joe—just about like Louis did a few years back. Archie Moore gave him his other good fight. Archie sat him on his pants early but Archie's dynamite didn't have the kick to put Rocky to sleep.

It would have been good to see Rocky fight Patterson. Yet it is good to see a champion with sense enough to retire before getting his brains beat out. Only one other champion in modern times had the wisdom to step down and stay out of the game, after he had done so. That was Gene Tunney, who reigned from 1926 to 1928.

Marciano, if he stays retired, will have been champion for about twice as long as Tunney, from 1952 to 1956. And he will rate with the all-time greats. You can't put together a pro career of straight victories, without defeat, and not be ranked one of the all-time great's. His opponents, and all boxing fans, will long remember the Brockton Buster.

TOP DIGNATORIES AT VA. OBSERVANCE

Williamsburg, Va.- Ambassadors to the United States from more than 30 United Nations have accepted invitations to attend ceremonies here on May 15, when U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold delivers a major address opening this restored city's annual Prelude to Independence celebration.

Russian Ambassador Georgi Zarubin is among the delegation, which will include representatives from Israel, Jordan, Great Britain, Germany, Greece, Spain, Argentina, Saudi Arabia, Iran and Laos.

The governors of Virginia and neighboring states, commissioners of the District of Columbia, Virginia congressmen and former governors have also been invited to attend the event.

The outdoor ceremonies will be held at the colonial Capitol, where on May 15, 1776, Virginia's delegates unanimously proposed that the colonies become "free and independent states." This act led directly to the Declaration of Independence on July 4.

The annual Prelude to Independence observance will continue through July 4.

VET FAINTS 3 TIMES

Fort Worth, Texas.- Three safecrackers were hard at work in a store when police sneaked in, surprising them. Whereupon one of the three, Jimmy Olson Coffey, 22, fainted. Later he came to and fainted again. In all, he fainted three times before officers could take him to the city jail.

UDC Meeting Next Thursday

The Appomattox Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will meet next Thursday evening, May 17, at 8 o'clock., in the home of Mrs. W. L. Brown. Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Carroll Smith and Mrs A. J. Zastrow will be co-hostesses.

The program will consist of the presentation of the notable record, "The Rebellion," by Larry Miller. This is the story of the legends of the War Between the States, and is interwoven with songs and background music.

Health & Beauty

There are three basic rules for the care of a womans "crowning glory" that have remained unchanged through the years.

Daily brushing—the one hundred strokes, lubrication, and cleanliness. You will find that these are the answers to most hair problems, including dandruff, dull, lifeless hair, unmanageable locks.

Beautiful hair has its start in the foods you eat and the amounts of rest you get. Milk, meat, and eggs are known as good "hair foods." The next thing is to perform the basic procedures regularly.

You must brush fine or coarse oily or dry hair with extra vigor. All types will benefit and be improved by a brisk daily brushing. If your hair tends to be dry, brushing will increase circulation and alleviate this condition. The oily scalp will benefit by having the coating of oil and dirt removed by brushing. A gentle massage will also increase the circulation of the scalp, and keep it in a healty state.

You must keep your scalp so that new hair can force its way through and keep from having dandruff. Dandruff can be overcome by frequent shampoos and massage.

Hair should be shampooed at least once a week or every ten days. There are a few people with very excessivly oily scalps who must wash thir hair every three days in order for it to look its best. Frequency of shampoos will depend somewhat on where you live. If you live in a city where much dirt and dust floats in the air, it may be necessary to wash your hair twice a week.

Hair that is unamanageable can be controlled with pure liquid petroleum hair tonic or a lanolin-base hair cream.

A BUNCH OF GOLDEN KEYS

(Editor's Note: The following verses were contributed by Mrs. G. W. Lewis, from an old clipping):

A bunch of golden keys are mine,
To make each day with gladness shine;

Good morning, is the golden key,
That unlocks every door for me.

When evening comes, good night I say,
And close the door of each glad day;

When at the table "if you please"
I take from off my bunch of keys.

When friends give anything to me,
I use the little "Thank you" key;
"Excuse me," "Beg your pardon," too,
When by mistakes some harm I do.

And, if unkindly harm I've given,
Forgive he, and I'll be forgiven.
On a golden ring these keys I'll bind,
This is its motto, "Be ye kind."

I'll often use each golden key,
And then a child polite I'll be;
Hearts like doors open with ease,
With very, very little keys.

And, don't forget that they are these,
"I thank you sir" and "If you please."

NEW BOOK IN THE COUNTY LIBRARY

Doctor Kate, Angel on Snowshoes, by Adele Comandini.

From earliest childhood, Kate Pelham had a dream. She longed to be a doctor and with fierce determination fought hard against all the obstacles family and society could, and did raise against this ambition forty years ago. Kate won her medical degree from the University of Buffalo, a fine practice in Detroit, and, most important of all, the man she loved, Bill Newcomb. Then fate dealt her a blow that would have destroyed an ordinary person. Bill Newcomb became desperately ill, and Dr. Kate abandoned her practice and went with him to the northwoods. Later a son was born, and Dr. Kate prepared to accept the role of housewife for life. But a salty country doctor stung Kate Newcomb into the realization that medicine, too, must be a large part of her life, and, ten years after dropping her city practice, she became a full-fledged country doctor herself. Since that time, Dr. Kate has been "Angel on Snowshoes" to the vast area she tirelessly serves, making her rounds through the deep snows of winter and the raging floods of spring. Largely through her efforts, a church was built where none was before, and the crowning achievement of her notable career has been the opening of the Lakeland Memorial Hospital.

TRANSCO WINS SAFETY AWARD

Recognition for its 1955 safety record was given Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. this week by the National Safety Council.

The big-inch pipeline moves Texas - Louisiana natural gas across the Deep South and up the Eastern Seaboard as far as New York City.

In the Transco system are 3,171 miles of steel pipeline in 12 states.

Safety Director Stanley Owens in Houston was notified that Transco had won an Award of Merit from the National Safety Council for the 1955 record of only 25 loss of time injuries during more than 3,250,000 (three and one-fourth million) man hours worked by its pipeliners.

Mr. Owens also received from the White House in Washington an invitation to the President's Conference on Occupational Safety, May 14.

Transco's Safety Director said that 20 of the company's 29 compressor stations and pipeline districts achieved perfect safety records in 1955.

ABOUT YOUR HOME

By Frances Dell

The important thing in designing a childs room is to use a decorative theme that allows easy maintenance.

An outstanding designer of children's furniture said recently that the use of colorful and attractive wall paper in a child's room is a perfect way to expose a child to beauty at an early age. The designer advocates that as exposure to good music brings appreciation in later years, so will exposure to style in a child's room bring abobe the same effect in furnishings.

We are told that there is no excuse to surround children with colors and styles as grim as the deck of a battleship. Colorful wallpaper may be sprayed and become just as washable as any painted wall.

A floor covering that will take hard wear and won't spot from water is desirable. A perfect flooring for a child's room is plastic coated cork. No waxing is necessary, moisture does not damage it, and spots will wipe up with a little soap and water. The cork is very quiet, which is perfect for baby and makes it much easier on parents later on.

All paint used on furniture in a child's room should be the non-toxic type. This fact will not limit your choice of colors. Try to avoid sharp corners on any piece of furniture chosen.

The fabric used in the nursery should all be washable. Plastic on an upholstered furniture is desirable. Foam rubber is considered the best buy because it is more durable and can be cleaned easily at home. If you are building a nursery, you may want to consider some type of sound-proofing on the ceiling, or a wall which faces a busy hall.

Okinawa is key U. S. base in the Far East.
